Travel Assistance Information

A limited amount of financial assistance funds for travel, on a reimbursable basis, may be available for grass roots community representatives, tribal, and student conference participants who are presenters at the 2020 National Environmental Justice Conference and Training Program. Financial assistance will be awarded based on available funds and equitable distribution. Funds will be awarded in accordance with the guidelines below.

Eligible Expenses:

- Hotel Room
- Transportation to Washington, DC and return home

PLEASE NOTE: The conference does not provide a per diem nor does it reimburse for travel in Washington, DC or meals.

Conditions for Receipt of Travel Assistance:

1. You must register for, be a presenter at, and attend the entire conference (no funding will be provided to persons not attending the entire conference). If you are submitting an abstract to present at the conference, please submit your application for travel assistance simultaneously therewith.
2. Your complete application must be received by December 13, 2020.
3. To apply you must provide your name, address, organization, title (if applicable), email and phone number by email to: email@thenejc.org. Please also provide us a brief description of your environmental justice activities and interests. If a student, please include your major and the name and contact information for your department head. Please be sure to put "Travel Assistance Request" in the subject line.
4. You will receive notification of acceptance of your request by January 17, 2020. Only recipients of travel assistance will receive notification.
